TWIST

The twisted sense of values and the nutty derangement of the times was indicated in one peculiarly noteworthy statement by a hijacker spokesman after attempts on four airplanes.

He complained that while three of the hijackings worked, the attempt on the El Al Israeli airliner was not successful because the Israelis have armed guards aboard their planes. This, the hijacker spokesman complained, is in gross violation of international law!

What kind of situation do we have when criminals cite "law" to condemn the guards who thwart criminal attacks? — Chattanooga (Tenn.) News-Free Press

SUREFIRE PLAN, BUT...

Some people believe that the federal budget is so out of whack that there's no way to balance it. They're wrong.

Sen. Carl Curtis, a Republican from Nebraska, recently proposed a method for guaranteeing that the budget get balanced. It was a surefire plan, the Curtis proposal. He offered an amendment specifying that the $12,500 annual pay hike Congress presented itself this year would be suspended until the budget was balanced.

If that amendment had passed, we have no doubt that pretty soon we'd have had a balanced budget. But it didn't pass, taxpayers will not be surprised to learn, and the chances of it ever passing are just about as slim as the prospects of seeing the budget balanced. — Savannah (Ga.) Evening Press

University to Recruit More Blacks

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., (AP) — Dr. David W. Mullins, president of the University of Arkansas, says the university will continue its "diligent efforts" to recruit Negro students, faculty members and athletes.

Mullins made the remarks in response to a federal report which was mildly critical of the university's procedure for recruiting black students, faculty members and athletes.

The report, dated Dec. 16, was based on the findings of a team from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's regional office at Dallas, Tex. The report recommended stepped-up recruiting programs to attract members of minority groups.

The report noted that enrollment of full-time black undergraduate students was only 1.7 per cent of the 9,653 undergraduate enrollment. The report said there were more than 600 faculty members at the university but that only one was black. There are two Negroes on the school's administrative staff.

"While the hiring of these three persons does represent progress made since our previous visit to the university, this program is less than we had come to expect of the University of Arkansas," the report said.

"We will continue our diligent efforts to employ black faculty members," Mullins said. He said deans and department heads had been advised of the policy of nondiscrimination in employment and "of the need to develop a more equitable racial balance in our academic departments."

The report said that of 223 athletic scholarships at the university, only seven were granted to black athletes. The report said recruitment of athletes must be conducted in such a manner as to assure equality of recruitment for all.

The report said the university must receive assurances from national and local chapters of social organizations at the campus that their admission policies do not discriminate on the basis of race, but Mullins said the university had already received such notification.

Inflation Is Slowing in Vietnam

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — A year-end survey of South Vietnam's troubled economy shows that rampant inflation is slowing down, U.S. officials said today.

The cost of living rose 24 per cent during the first half of 1970, then increased only 6 per cent in the second half, economists said.

One source said that the slowdown began in August and accelerated in September and October, when the Saigon government instituted several significant economic reforms.

The government in mid-September jumped the interest rate on savings accounts and time deposits from about 7 per cent to about 17 per cent, mainly to keep what little money was being held in banks from losing its value due to rapid inflation.

The result, economists said, was a 30 per cent increase in bank deposits that took 5 billion piasters, or $42.4 million, out of circulation in less than four months.

The remainder of the reform package was implemented in October, including a partial devaluation of the piaster and a loosening of import licensing regulations. But while appearing to encourage imports, the new rules required importers to post deposits of one to five times the value of their expected shipments.

In two months, another 14 billion piasters—or $118.6 million—left the market place. Officials say this more than offset the inflationary pressures of a 16 per cent wage increase given soldiers and civil servants.

"The object of this whole game is to influence people's attitudes," the economist said. "The confidence factor and the general state of mind are all important in an economy that's so sensitive to speculation and hoarding."

About 10,000 Young Voters

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — County Clerk Jerome Climer estimated Thursday that there are "potentially about 10,000 young persons" in Pulaski County who would be eligible to register as voters as soon as the mechanics of lowering the voting age to 18 have been worked out.

In a recent ruling, the U.S. Supreme Court said 18-year-olds could vote in national elections. Climer said registration of 18-year-old voters probably would not begin for four to six months.

Arson Linked to Fire That Claimed 28

By BILL ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A blaze which claimed 28 lives at a fashionable downtown hotel Dec. 20 was the work of one or more arsonists, a special board of inquiry has decided.

The board, in a report released Thursday night, said the blaze began on the fourth floor of the 12-story Pioneer International Hotel and two separate fires were touched off.

"The thing that indicates arson," Fire Chief L. F. Peterson said following the report's release, "is the fact two fires started in the fourth floor hallway about 60 feet apart."

The board said its conclusion was based on a preliminary report by Cyril W. Holmes, a California forestry arson investigator.

The City Council selected three of its members to compose the board. The report followed more than two weeks of secret hearings.

Firemen said shortly after the blaze many of the hotel's 112 occupants awakened in the upper portion of the building to find the hallways aflame and no means of escape except through windows.

Mills Plans Bill to Hike SS Benefits

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, says he will introduce a bill in the 92nd Congress which would include an increase in Social Security benefits and the Nixon administration's Family Assistance Plan.

Mills said in an interview in Little Rock that he planned to introduce the measure on the first day of the session. The Congress convenes Jan. 21.

He said that by including both proposals in one bill "there is no question but what the Senate will have to consider them—if they pass the one they will have to pass the whole."

Mills said the bill he planned to introduce would provide for possibly a 7 or 8 per cent across-the-board increase in Social Security benefits.

He said his decision to put the Social Security benefits and the Family Assistance Plan in the same bill was a return to the House's usual policy. Mills said that until last year Social Security and welfare legislation had been considered in one bill. Mills divided the two issues when they were considered by the Ways and Means Committee last year. He said he felt at the time that the House should "face the issue of family assistance head-on" since it was a new concept.

The Senate Finance Committee shelved the Family Assistance Plan last year, but Mills said his plan to include the two proposals in one measure would negate that possibility.

The Family Assistance Plan would provide a minimum income of $1,600 for a family of four and would require able-bodied adults to sign up for a job to be eligible for the aid.

"So it moves in the direction that I would think people would want us to move—to see that those who are qualified to work and are on welfare have to go to work," Mills said.

Tuna Is Safe But Swordfish May Be Banned

By G. C. THELEN Jr.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says there is not enough mercury in most types of tuna to worry about, but contamination probably will eliminate swordfish from the American diet.

The FDA, reporting on a survey still under way, said Thursday the nation's food supply appears free of significant mercury pollution, except for swordfish and some types of large-size tuna.

"We've done a market-basket survey on a broad variety of foods and supplemented this with spot checks," said Virgil O. Woodcock, head of the FDA's Bureau of Foods.

"So far the only problem we've found is fish," he told a news briefing, but added that even there the pollution problem is not "critical enough for the housewife to worry about."

Cruise Ship Burns, All Aboard Safe

By TONY COZIER

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — Hundreds of passengers and crewmen who escaped in lifeboats from the grounded French cruise ship Antilles were brought here today by the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth II.

The Antilles went aground Friday night on an uncharted submerged reef about half a mile off tiny Mustique Island in the Caribbean and burst into flames. The fire continued to burn early today.

The cruise ship's passengers and crew used lifeboats and other small craft to reach Mustique, where 501 survivors were picked up by the Queen Elizabeth, called to help the stricken vessel. All aboard the Antilles were believed safe.

Another 85 passengers were brought aboard a French vessel and 49 remained on Mustique, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

"The latest unconfirmed report is that there were 635 people on board the Antilles," said a Coast Guard spokesman in Miami. "If this is true, we've rescued all of them. It won't be confirmed until we receive the passenger list."

In Paris, the French Line, which operated the Antilles, said a fuel tank burst when the Antilles struck the reef, spilling oil into the boiler room.

The company said the crew at one time seemed to have brought the fire under control but soon it broke out again in such intensity that it was impossible to extinguish.

The line said there were 350 passengers, including 117 persons who had boarded at San Juan, P.R., 57 from French islands in the Caribbean, 102 from Venezuela, 11 from Curacao, and four Frenchmen from the mainland of France.

The company said the liner was valued at about $14.4 million, and it considered the ship a "total loss."

Mrs. Joy Sprott, a Mustique housewife reached at the island's single telephone, said the black-hulled luxury liner "ran aground about a half mile offshore and everyone aboard apparently managed to make it to Mustique. There was absolutely no panic and all the people who have come here are in good condition."

She said the islanders used their small boats to bring many of the passengers from the ship.

Three U.S. Coast Guard planes were sent to the scene 20 miles south of St. Vincent and 450 miles south of San Juan, P.R.

Murton Again Spouts Off About Prison

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Correction Commissioner C. Robert Sarver denied Thursday charges that he eliminated or distorted prison reforms initiated by former state prison Supt. Thomas O. Murton.

Murton leveled the charges in the February issue of Playboy magazine.

Sarver said Murton's charges are "nothing short of a damn lie—not just a lie, but a damn lie."

In the Playboy interview, Murton reviewed charges he leveled in the past against the state, its prison system and politicians.

"I don't want to single Sarver out, however," Murton said. "He's no worse, and in many ways better, than a number of men in the corrections profession."

Murton said, however, that he did not see how Sarver could claim he continued Murton's reform campaign in the prison system.

"Since I left, the inmate council has been abolished, the open-prison policy has been eliminated, death row inmates are once again restricted to their cells for most of the day," Murton said.

No One Enters World Laughing—All Are Crying in Anger, Fear

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — No one ever entered this world laughing. Everyone is born crying...in anger or fear.

In this respect middle age and birth are quite alike.

Rarely, if ever, does a human being express joy on reaching his 40th birthday, which is usually accepted as being the threshold of middle age. He becomes droop-shouldered and mopey. He wallows in self-pity and asks himself:

"Why should this happen to me?"

Yes, middle age has almost as many enemies as the income tax or poison ivy.

This is too bad for, looked at constructively, middle age has certain advantages.

Such as:

It lasts longer than any other period of life—from 50 to 65.

It has more variety, because it is more transitional. It enables one to bridge the gap between the wasteland of youth and the wisdom of age.

In middle age you get fewer bloody noggins because you learn not to beat your forehead needlessly against every wall you see.

You can say more snarly things to strangers—for most of them would hesitate to punch a man wearing bifocals.

It takes you less time to comb your hair in the morning.

Your general health improves as you give up most of the vices of your youth because they make you feel too tired.

While you may be overweight, you probably still have a good life expectancy if you exercise properly—that is, exercise restraint in everything you do.

Your wife practically gives up trying to make you a better man. She puts up with your faults, knowing that it's better to have you with them than not to have you at all.

You have more freedom to do the things you want, and are less compelled to do the things you don't want to do, because you are supposed to be more idiosyncratic—not senile.

You are more appreciative of life, particularly near the end of middle age. Every morning you wake up with a feeling of gratitude and victory: "By golly, I made it again!"

Why did God give middle age to man anyway? Why, because man needs it.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The Uruguayan government says it will not negotiate with the terrorists who abducted British Ambassador Geoffrey Jackson by intercepting his limousine and clubbing his guards to the ground.

The Foreign Ministry said in a statement, however, that "we will spare no effort to protect his life and obtain his immediate liberation." There has been no word from the kidnappers.

The government has refused to deal with guerrillas responsible for six previous political kidnappings, but Jackson ranks higher than the previous victims.

The 55-year-old British ambassador was abducted Friday as he was being driven to the Embassy. The operation was carried out in professional style and with split-second timing by about 10 Tupamaros guerrillas, one of whom was disguised as a vegetable vendor. He pulled a submachine gun out of his basket of produce.

The guerrillas began the operation by darting in front of Jackson's car in an American pickup truck. The car collided with the truck, and guerrillas immediately appeared on the street and surrounded the limousine.

They also surrounded an escort vehicle that was following with two plainclothes guards inside.

The guerrillas ordered the guards to get out, put them against a wall and clubbed them unconscious. Jackson and his driver tried to resist guerrillas who climbed into their car, but were overwhelmed and the driver was thrown into the street.

The kidnappers drove away with the diplomat in his damaged limousine, but abandoned it a few blocks away, apparently switching to another vehicle. In all, the kidnappers used six stolen getaway cars.

When police found the ambassador's car, it was on fire and there were bloodstains on the seat, although police said the blood could have been the driver's. An aerosol can was also found in the car, and police said it might have contained some substance to render Jackson unconscious.

Foreign diplomats held an emergency meeting Friday night in the offices of the papal uncle, Msgr. Agustin J. Sepinski, to discuss the abduction. No announcement was made after the meeting, but U.S. Ambassador Charles Wallace Adair Jr. said: "We discussed what happened today. The diplomatic community expressed its sympathy for Ambassador Jackson."

The Uruguayan government offered an $8,000 reward for information leading to the kidnappers, and relayed its "profound sorrow and great concern" to the British government. It said all steps were being taken to find the ambassador.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a special House panel investigating campaign spending used a hidden committee in the nation's capital to conceal the names of donors who gave him $12,000 last year when he was unopposed for re-election.

Rep. Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr., a veteran Democratic congressman from Boston, said the campaign contributions were routed through the "D. C. O'Neill Committee" in Washington to avoid a Massachusetts requirement to list donors' names publicly.

O'Neill had no opponent in either the primary or general election.

He is chairman of the House's Special Committee to Investigate Campaign Expenditures, which is due to deliver its findings to Congress next week after probing charges of irregularities in 15 races. At least one dispute touches on another candidate's D. C. committee.

The $12,000 raised by the D. C. O'Neill Committee showed up as income on a year-end report filed in the House by the regular O'Neill for Congress Committee.

That report shows the money eventually went mainly for O'Neill's newsletter printing costs and for his contributions to Democratic state candidates in Massachusetts.

O'Neill said he didn't want to make public the names of the donors because, in his words, they would become prey for other political candidates who would approach them for additional contributions.

"In fairness to the friends who contribute to our campaign, we do them a service by sending it to the Washington committee and then transferring it to the Boston account," he said.

A loophole in the law allows fund-raising committees set up in the nation's capital to avoid filing public reports identifying donors and itemizing the spending.

It is a popular device used by many incumbent senators and congressmen. At least one other unopposed candidate, Rep. Edward A. Garmatz, D-Md., who is chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee, had a D. C. committee which got money from seamen's union groups.

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a sharp scolding of the Agriculture Department, a U.S. appeals court has ordered the federal government to seek a complete ban on the pesticide DDT. The court also ruled the government had to hold public hearings before making administrative decisions involving pesticide use.

Deciding whether DDT's benefits outweigh its dangers as a poison may be a "delicate question," the court said Thursday, but it must be explored "in the full light of public hearings and not resolved behind the closed doors of the secretary."

The one dissenting judge, Roger Bobb, charged his two colleagues who wrote the majority opinion were "undertaking to manage the Department of Agriculture."

Uruguay Says No Deal With Kidnapers

Classical Balinese dance, the Legong—in legends, the heavenly dance of divine nymphs.

YOUNG DANCERS OF INDONESIA

Dancing is an integral part of their life for the people of the islands of Indonesia. It appeals to and is watched by people of all ages, from babes in arms to village elders. It is a tradition into which children are born and it is a natural part of their growing up.

The islands have a rich and complex culture. Medieval Hindu empires were overtaken by the spread of Islam, and the Muslim religion largely replaced Hinduism and Buddhism in the 16th century. But many Javanese Hindus fled to Bali, where their ancient arts and rituals have been preserved.

Almost all the dancing draws its inspiration from religion. Dances to be performed in the temples were made as beautiful as possible, worthy to be offered as gifts to the deities during festivals, with richly decorated costumes and the accompaniment of gamelan music.

The dance is an expression of religious devotion—but it is also a living art, created by the community, for the enjoyment of the community. Dancing is not really a profession. For the most part the people themselves are the performers, and often the performers are very young indeed.

Children compete keenly for the honor of taking part in the dancing and they prepare themselves for it with great seriousness and discipline. The dances are learned mainly by imitation. As well as being taught in their own community, children can go on to a conservatory where, from high school age, they will specialize in the study and research of dance and music, many probably with the aim of becoming teachers themselves later.

New Hope for Victims of Arthritis

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of fatty chemicals with a name as long as its list of possible uses—from treatment of a stuffy nose to a morning-after birth-control pill—may offer hope against crippling rheumatoid arthritis.

Drs. Robert B. Zurier and Gerald Weissmann of New York University School of Medicine made the disclosure in a report to a meeting of the American Rheumatism Association.

They outlined their research for a news conference Thursday but stressed use of "prostaglandins" in treatment of arthritis is about 10 years away.

The arthritis-treating concept, they said, is suggested by test-tube experiments using one of the prostaglandins as a kind of roadblock against release of certain corrosive enzymes—chemicals speeding bodily functions—from living white blood cells.

Zurier and Weissmann explained previous experiments showed that when the joints of animals are exposed to such enzymes, inflammation and cartilage degradation—two painful symptoms of arthritis—can result.

The doctors said their experiments—first of the kind conducted anywhere in the world—suggest three possibilities:

1. Prostaglandins—hormone-like fatty substances found widely in human and animal tissue—may, in their natural state, play some key role in regulating the body's protection-seeking "inflammatory reaction" to invasion by such things as viruses and bacteria.
2. In rheumatoid arthritis,

New Chairman Gets Tired of Browbeating

By LEE BYRD

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When a glimpse from the gallery finds him reposed at his backrow Senate desk, the figure of the man most likely to be the next chairman of the Grand Old Party seems almost waxen.

Erect and perfect posture. Wrinkleless suit, dark blue. Face frozen in scrutable concern. Motionless, save the gently rhythmic massaging of his lame right hand by two fingers of the left.

Which means he's relaxed in about the same manner as the family Siamese curled innocently beneath the fishbowl, belying his zest for the next attack.

Or, more precisely, counterattack. Because Robert Joseph Dole's mainspring gets wound tightest when somebody starts saying unkind things about the President of the United States.

When that happens in the Senate, often as not it is the junior senator from Kansas who responds with an oratorical thrust aimed straight at the offender's ideological gut.

He's the first to admit mixed results, observing that Arkansas Democrat J. W. Fulbright "always has been very decent to me while he was taking me apart."

Dole insists the dueling "hasn't been a conscious thing," but adds "I got tired of hearing people like Kennedy and Muskie and McGovern getting up and browbeating the President."

"There are so many Democratic presidential aspirants, that somebody's got to watch them."

And then, this disclaimer from Dole, who frequently uses the editorial "we" in speaking of himself: "We really haven't been trying to carve any niche in the Senate by being Nixon's boy."

Conscious or not, the phenomenon of this brown-eyed, black-haired conservative rookie senator, age 47, matching wit and word counts with all comers is one of the most talked about on Capitol Hill.

And, like most acts of daring either deemed or destined as legendary, his bodychecking oratory already has a nickname suitable for perpetuity: The Dole Patrol.

"Some where in the Nixon campaign organization for 1972 there will be a swashbuckler, a real gut fighter," said a fellow senator from the Midlands. "Bob would be perfect if they really meant to retort Agnew."

During Dole's four terms as a congressman for a mammoth, 52-county wheatlands district in western Kansas the only nationwide notoriety for his name belonged to cans of pineapple.

But about 10 months after a landslide put him into the marble and mahogany jungle of the Senate, Bob Dole injected himself full bore into the bitter, albeit futile battles to confirm Nixon's nominations of Clement Haynsworth and G. Harold Carswell to the Supreme Court.

An administration staffer who monitored the unsolicited performance says he told the White House: "We might as well make use of him."

If Nixon now tabs Dole for national chairman—and all indications are that he will—there will be no doubt that the President agreed. But Dole says the White House has not been his stage manager.

"Oh, I've talked with the President on the phone four or five times," says Dole, "and seen him at the White House maybe 15 times as part of a group. My one personal meeting was after the elections, when, based upon my appearances in 27 states, I advised him on the national chairmanship. But that was when Bryce Harlow was my candidate, not me."

"The President doesn't call me and say 'Bob, tell ya what I'm gonna do with Cambodia'."

It was Cambodia, really, that white cells might ingest certain outside particles—including would-be protective antibodies against the malady—and, in so doing, release into the system corrosive body chemicals which normally would be contained inside the cells.

3. Artificial addition of prostaglandins might inhibit such a flow of chemicals—thus possibly controlling joint-tissue damage.

But they stressed a number of factors must be overcome before there can be any thought of human application against arthritis.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — How does a banker get to be a watchmaker? Henry Federman, president of the Sheffield Corp., doesn't tell how, but he does say why.

Federman, a banker in his native Germany, came to the United States in 1940.

"I was looking around for a field to enter," he said, "and I saw there was a need for popular-priced watches. So I started my own company." That's banker's acumen. And it paid off.

What makes Sheffield different from other moderate-priced watches is that the company created the first "fashion watch." Done in colored enamel on non-rustable aluminum bases, these designs were the first to take watches out of the utilitarian category and make them fashion accessories.

"The price was right," Federman said, "so women bought them the way they put Bob Dole out front. While one Republican after another hedged their bets on the wisdom of Nixon's order for last May's incursion, Dole went for broke.

"I don't particularly get keyed up," he says, "except in Southeast Asia. We're not really a defender, but I say an advocate of his policies. If they fail, then I'll fail."

Sometimes holding down the Senate's GOP leadership chair for more time than either of the titled chieftains, minority leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and whip Robert Griffin of Michigan, during the long summer debate, Dole was instrumental in delaying the vote on the Cooper-Church amendment until Nixon had removed all American troops from Cambodia.

And then—surprise—he voted for the amendment, which would ban U.S. ground action in that war-torn nation. "My colleagues were stunned," he recalls, but he explains that his vote was in recognition that Congress does have a role "when it comes to spending money."

Dole's vote on Cooper-Church seemed a breakthrough at the time from the Nixon line, but the President is known to have told one group of congressmen recently he now finds the measure acceptable. "He says that," says Dole, "knowing that we can't by statute change his rights and powers under the Constitution."

In effect, Dole's vote served to soften the contrast between the Democratic doves and the administration. He doesn't want himself, or any other White House advocate, construed as a hawk. "I'm against the war just as a lot of other people are," he says. "I just happen to think Nixon is right."

It was the same approach that carried him to his greatest Senate coup, and Fulbright was the victim. The Arkansas Democrat had planned, after the Cooper-Church marathon, to start another debate over war policy pegged to repeal of the 1964 Tonkin Gulf resolution, which President Johnson cited as congressional support of expanded U.S. involvement.

But Dole stole Fulbright's thunder with some lightning of his own. He called up the repealer himself, as an amendment to the military sales bill. Dole reasoned the resolution was of no importance to the White House anyway. "The war was already there when Nixon was elected."

Dole's self-propelled rise to prominence in the Senate is a departure from the tradition that a freshman must bide his time and work within the system. It's also a change for Dole, who seldom surfaced during

From Sheffield's Etruscan collection (left) lapis, jade or tigereye colored enamel dial is surrounded by sparkling rhinestones on a goldtone strap. would go out of business and I would still be successfully in the thick of it."

In the Sheffield spring collection for 1971 watches are grouped under "time for work," "leisure time," "time for sports," and "time for pleasure."

There are Nixon-Agnew watches, pendant watches to wear with the midi look, sports watches for men and women have wide denim bands and are designed to wear with jeans, dog collar watch necklaces, bracelet watches, ring watches—just name it and it's in the spring collection.

And to show their business heads are on straight, the company has put silver and silvertone watches high on their 1971 fashion list simply because 2½ million couples were wed and '71 will be their silver anniversary. Good thinking.

MODERN QUESTION

Dear Helen:

I don't own a car, being in college and broke. My girl has a job, so she provides the wheels.

Well Helen, here's a question for you. When a guy drives, the girl sits close. Usually he drives with one hand.

So when the girl drives, what does the guy do? I don't feel right, "snuggling." And if she tried to drive with only one hand I'd jump out of the car. — KEEPING MY DISTANCE?

Dear KMD:

Why doesn't she leave the driving to you? I probably sound super unmodern, but I'd put the man behind the steering wheel, no matter who owned the car. — H.

Dear Helen:

I am married to a man who is very outgoing. He is the type who can yell out "I love you" in a whole roomful of people.

I'm not demonstrative, though I love him deeply, and show it when we're alone. I'd like to be like he is, but I get embarrassed. I guess he doesn't realize this.

He got the idea that because I'm quiet, I'm not fond of him, so when he left for the service he said he wouldn't write until I showed him differently. That made me kind of mad, and when his family started getting letters and I didn't, I was miserable.

Should I give in and write? — THE QUITE ONE

Dear Quiet:

For goodness sakes, write a love letter that will burn a hole in the sky! Tell your husband all the things you find it hard to express, and keep those letters coming!

You two will discover when he gets home, that you know each other twice as well as when he left. — H.

Dear Helen:

My husband and I have been secretly married for six months. We plan to have a wedding on our first anniversary and tell everyone our secret then. I live with my mother and he has an apartment.

Family conflicts made this arrangement seem best. But we're having conflicts now of our own. When my husband tells me he's coming to see me, and then doesn't show up, I get mad, wondering if he is taking me for granted.

Then when I go to his apartment, my cousins sometimes see me, and they think we're having an affair. It's hard to convince them we're just watching TV when actually that isn't all we're doing.

The fellows at work don't make things easier by talking about marriage as if it were a trap.

I'm wondering whether we'll last until our second "wedding" day at this rate.

Any suggestions? — SECRETLY MRS. C.

Dear Mrs. C.:

Must you wait for that "anniversary"? Six more months of secrecy, and you may "celebrate" it with a divorce! — H.

Here is a hand bid by Peter Pender and Grant Baze to a very fine slam in the blue ribbon pairs. It illustrates both good partnership bidding and good dummy play.

Peter's three-club bid was their start toward slam. Grant did not know if Peter was trying for game or slam. He had a good spade raise and in addition held a singleton heart. His four-club bid showed both these things and enabled Peter to go into Blackwood and finally contract for six.

West made his best lead, a low trump. Peter took stock of dummy and decided to try to ruff two hearts and also set up dummy's fifth diamond to give him one club discard. Of course there was an easy club discard available on the diamond king.

He won the spade in his hand and cashed the ace of diamonds. Then he led a heart. West won the ace and led a second trump. Peter won this in his own hand and now was in fine cross-ruffing position since all his trumps were high.

He ruffed a heart in dummy, a diamond in his hand, his last heart with dummy's last trump and another diamond in his hand. This left him with only one trump. Enough to pull West's last one. At the same time he discarded a club from dummy. Then he cashed his king of clubs and claimed the last three tricks with dummy's ace of clubs and king-jack of diamonds.

Little-Understood Facts About Varicose Veins

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have varicose veins on my leg. It looks awful. What do you think about having the veins stripped? Are there certain foods and drinks to stay away from? As I get older, will I have hardening of the arteries? I am 49. My daughter is 28 but already has varicose veins.

Dear Reader—Varicose veins are common in women. They don't always cause difficulty even though they may not look good. The large veins have small valves in them that only permit blood to flow upward toward the heart. When the veins are dilated in large varicosities, frequently the valves do not close completely, making it difficult for the blood in the legs to be moved upward to the heart.

Not all varicose veins have incompetent valves and even if the veins are unsightly the circulation works fine. The doctor can do a test to find out if the valves are incompetent or not. This involves putting a tourniquet around the leg and measuring the filling and emptying characteristics of the veins during standing, lying and walking.

There are two sets of veins that may have incompetent valves—the veins deep inside the leg muscles that you can't see and those under the skin. If the valves are functioning adequately the doctor may feel that treatment is unnecessary. If varicose veins are associated with faulty valves in the veins, blood pools in the legs and causes swelling of the feet and ankles. As this gets worse, poor circulation may cause the skin to change color or even result in an ulcer around the ankle.

Unless an operation is desired for cosmetic purposes, many people can get along very well using elastic bandages or support stockings. If swelling and skin ulcers cannot be controlled this way, then stripping of the veins is indicated. This operation simply cuts the veins out in short pieces. In many instances support stockings or bandages are required after such an operation.

There is a tendency for varicose veins to occur in families. These types of varicose veins tend to occur in both legs and become apparent after a pregnancy or in the presence of obesity or in people who have jobs requiring a lot of standing. Any constriction, such as garters, makes the problem worse.

Varicose veins have nothing to do with hardening of the arteries or fatty deposits that develop in arteries with age. Most people, including women, do develop this problem though as they get older but from other causes.

There are no special foods that benefit varicose veins.

Bobcats Win; Juniors, B Boys Lose

By BILL MOORE
Star Sports Writer

Pandemonium in the Hope Bobcats' dressing room? Yes, after the Bobcats turned back a determined Magnolia Panther team, 61-58, in the first district game for Hope.

Coach John Ross' charges showed they can also be district competitors this year after fighting all the way to beat the Panthers, ranked number 11 in the state.

Stunning Magnolia in the first few minutes, the Bobcats took a quick 5-0 lead after John Dudley whipped in three points and Steve Harris hit a pair of charity shots. As soon as Lynn Norton traded points with Willie Dale, Magnolia took a time out to talk things over and size up the situation.

With the ball back in play, Dudley and Norton combined to score nine points while the Bobcats' sticky defense allowed only eight as Hope took a 16-10 lead, moving into the second quarter.

However, Magnolia hit a hot streak and with 5:58 to go in the half, the score was knotted at 16 all.

After Hope fell behind, Dudley popped the net once and Norton hit two free throws as the Bobcats took the lead for good with 4:45 left in the half.

Six points by David Briggs and two each by Dudley and Norton kept Hope going as they took a 30-26 halftime lead over the tough Panthers team.

A close race was in store during the second half, as both teams were trying hard to win an important district game.

Taking the second half tipoff, Harris quickly drilled in two points, but as the game progressed with Hope leading only 38-35 and Magnolia working near the goal, Dudley stole the ball and dribbled all the way downcourt for two more and a reasonably safe lead for another minute or so.

Seconds later the third period ended with Hope leading, 44-35, in a close and exciting game.

Once again Hope got the tipoff and scored after Parker Powell hit to charity shots. Two minutes later after Norton made a beautiful shot, pushing the ball in from behind the backboard, Hope held a 50-43 lead with 5:24 left in the game.

With 2:30 left, a technical foul shot game Hope a 55-49 margin, and the Bobcats matched Magnolia's points the rest of the way, sewing it up after Powell hit two free throws with nine seconds left.

Leading the Bobcats in points were Dudley with 28, Norton getting 12, Powell hitting eight, Briggs scoring seven, and Harris popping six. Dale totaled up 24 points for Magnolia.

In two games earlier, the B-Bruins were handed their first loss of the season, 54-35, and the Bobkittens later fell to the Panthers Cubs, 63-49.

In the first game, the Bruins held an early 7-6 lead before falling behind the rest of the way. Hope trailed moving into the second quarter, 10-7.

With Danny Joyce and James Bradley hitting about the only points, the Bruins fell behind at halftime, 17-13, and never could quite catch up.

Back out in the third quarter, Joyce hit the net as Hope trailed 21-15, then after Roger Newton and Danny Boyette each connected once, Joyce sank two free throws with two seconds left in the period to pull Hope to within seven, 29-22.

Although fighting to the buzzer now, the B-Bruins just couldn't keep up and after Ricky Clark hit a charity shot with 21 seconds left in the game, only Magnolia scored again.

Joyce led Hope with nine points, followed by Bradley with eight, and Newton with seven.

Turning now to the Bobkittens game, they never did get untracked as Magnolia used a balanced offense and defense to keep the Kittens in check all night.

Quickly Magnolia built up a 10-6 lead, before David Huddleston hit two buckets from the corner to close the gap at 10-7. However,

Waiting ...

THE DATE has been set—March 8 in Madison Square Garden—and the countdown has begun for the biggest heavyweight championship fight in history. The principals, of course, are Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier, each claiming the title. While waiting for the bell, Ali has three daughters to keep him company (above) and Frazier has his guitar and boxing gloves (left). Each will earn $2.5 million—win or lose.
